

BIOLOGICAL ANTHROPOLOGY RESEARCH SEMINARS 2017

Thursdays 4pm

Jean Martin Room, Level 3 Beryl Rawson Building 13

February 23rd Dr Rita Hardiman University of Melbourne

The Melbourne Femur Research Collection: From forensic anthropology to multi-disciplinary research collection of international significance

March 2nd Megan O'Donnell Australian National University

The Phoenix Cohort: The effects of bushfire stress in utero

March 16th Dr Tanya Smith Griffith University

How teeth shed light on our evolutionary past

March 23rd Prof Robert Brooks University of New South Wales

The value of rarity in sexual behaviour

April 6th Dr Vicky Melfi Taronga Conservation Society Australia

Behavioural Biology title TBC

May 4th Clare McFadden Australian National University

Parturition Scars

May 18th Dr Emiliano Bruner Centro Nacional de Investigación sobre la Evolución Humana, Spain; and University of Colorado, US

Fossils, skulls, and brains: bridging paleoneurology and medicine

July 27th Dr Siân Halcrow University of Otago, NZ

The once forgotten child in bioarchaeology: developments in the field

August 17th Dr David Coall Edith Cowan University

The crucial role of the early psychosocial environment in human reproductive developmental plasticity: an evolutionary perspective

August 31st Dr Alison Behie Australian National University

Human and primate adaptations to changing environments

September 21st Dr Cyril Grueter University of Western Australia

Sexual selection and primate multilevel societies

October 5th Dr Caroline Bennett Victoria University of Wellington, NZ

What do we do when we dig up mass graves?

October 19th Dr Varsha Pilbrow University of Melbourne

The Great Ape Dental Scoring System and a single case-study of its application to human evolutionary research